ADRY'S TESTIMONY CONTRADICTED

The Father of the Two Men Declares That They Were Not Atone Together at the Time of Harry's Alleged Threats Against

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 21.-Mrs. Adry Hayward was a wirness in the Ging case yes terday. Preceding her testimony Hornes L. Wells, paying teller of the City bank, and Louise Ireland were sworn. Wells testified to having paid Harry Hayward between $6,000 and $7,000 after Sept. 1. 1894, thus accounting for the defendant's possession of money that did not come from Miss Ging. Mrs. Adry Hayward's testimony simply bore on the question of the time Harry Hayward called at Adry's flat on the night of the murder. Mrs. W. W. Hayward, the mother of the defendant, was then sworn. The first part of her testimony was intended to help establish Harry's alibi. Mrs. Hayward said Harry came into her room at 7:2) and said he was going out to make a call. About 7:40 he came in again, hurriedly brushed his hair and went out, saying that he was going to the opera. The twenty minutes between these two times is the vital period, for it was in that time, according to Blixt's testimony, that Harry put him in the buggy with Miss Ging, with instructions to drive away and kill her.

The largest crowd since the trial began was in the court room in the afternoon. Mrs. Hayward again took the stand, but owing to the numerous objections entered by the state, nothing material was devel-

w. W. Hayward, the father of the boys, was the next witness. The witness denied some of Bilixt's statements, but as a material impeachment the testimony was a failure. In regard to Adry's evidence, the witness denied that on Nov. H he was sent by Harry to the flats to show people rooms. Witness stated that he was in his office the morning of Nov. 33. Harry was there awhile, for half an hour perhaps. Adry was there for a short time. They were not there above that morning. This is the time when Adey stand that Haery and he had the exciting interview in reference to the proposed kithing of the woman.

The witness corrobatated his wife in that portion of her testimony where she said Adry was violent on Oct. 7, and called his mother names which reflected upon her character. In telling of the occurrences, the old gentleman broke down and sobbed. and the processings were delayed some time waiting for lam to compres lamself. Half the women in the audience cried from sympathy.

FRED DOUGLASS DEAD.

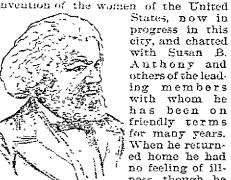

The Great Colored Orator a Victim of Heart Disease.

DEATH CAME WITHOUT WARNING.

Life Sketch of a Was Who, Though Born a Slave, Gained National Fame and Political Preferment Through the Brillimitey of His Oratory.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Frederick Douglass, the noted freedman, orntor and diplomat, died a few minutes before 7 o'clock last night at his residence in Anacostia, a suburb of this city, or heart disease. His deuta was entirely unexpected, as he had been enjoying the best of health. During the afternoon he attended the convention of the women of the United States, now in with Susan B. Authory and others of the leading members with whom he friendly terms for many years.

When he returned home he had no feeling of illhas been on noss, though he FREDERICK DOUGLASS, appeared to be a little exhausted from the climb up the steep flight of steps leading from the street to the house, which is on a high terrace. He sat down and chatted with his wife about the women at the convention, telling of various things that had been said and done. Suddenly he gasped, clapped his band to his heart and fell back unconscious. A doctor was hastily summoned, and arrived within a very few moments, but his efforts to revive Mr. Douglass were hopeless from the first. Within twenty minutes after the attack the faint motion of the heart ceased entirely, and the great ex-slave statesman was dead.

Mr. Douglass leaves two sons and a daughter, the children of his first wife. His second wife, who was a white woman, survives him.

The story of this second marriage was a romantic one. Miss Helen Pitts, whom he married, was a New England woman, of middle age, a clerk in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia when Mr. Douglass was appointed to that office. She was also a member of a literary society to which he belonged. They were thrown much together, and finally became ongaged. Her relatives opposed the match bitterly on account of his color, but finally yielded to force of circumstances. Some of them have for some time been living near the Douglass home. on Anacostia Heights.

Frederick Douglass was born near Easton, Talbot county, Md., in February, 1817. His mother was a negro slave and his father a white man. At the age of 10 he was sent to Baltimore, where he learned to read and write. His master allowed him to here his own time for $3 a week. and he was employed in a shippard.

In September, 1835, he fled from Baltimore and made his way to New York. Hence he went to New Bedford, Miss, where he married and lived for two or three years, supporting himself by day labor on the wharves and in various works shops. Wall there he changed his name to Douglass. He had previously be a called Lloyd, from the name of his old master He was aided in his effects for self education by William Lloyd Garrison. In the summer of 1841 he attended an anti-slavery convention at Nartucket and made a speech which was so well received that he was offered the agency of the Massachusetts Anti-Slavery seriety. In this capacity he travelled and lectured through the New England states for four years Large audiences were attracted by his graphic descriptions of slavery and his eloquent appeals. At this time he published his first book, entitled "Narrative of My Experience in Stavery.

In 1815 he went to Europe and lectured on slavery to enthasitistic audiences in nearly all of the large towns of Great Bertain. In istib's coords in England raised a purse of $75) to purchase his freedoin in due form of law. He remained two years in Great Bertain, and in 1847 began at Rochester, N. Y., the publication of Fred rick Douglass, Paper, whose title was afterwards caanged to The North Star. In 1855 help (blashed "My Bondage and My Freedom

In 1-59 the John Brown riots took place in Voginia. He was supposed to be impliened in these and Gavernoe Wise, of Virgenia, made requisition for his arrest up of the governor of Anchigan, in which stat he then was. Polavoid difficulty Mr. Douglass went to Land and, where he remanuel for six or eight months. He then returned to Romae-, availed continued the publication of his paper. When the civil war began in 18 d he urged upon President Lincoln the employment of colored troops and the issuance of a proclamation of emancipation. In 1853, when it was at last decided to employ such troops, he gave his assistance in enlistingmen for such regiments, especially the Fifty-fourth and i Fifty-fifth Massachusetts.

After the abolition of slavery he discontinued the publication of his paper and applied himself to the preparation and dolivery of lyceum lectures. In September, 1870, he became editor of The New National Era, in Washington. This was afterwards continued by his sons Lewis and Frederick. In 1871 he was appointed assistant secretary to the commission to San Domingo. On his return President Grant appointed him one of the territorial council of the District of Columbia. In 1872 he was elected presidential elector-at-large for the state of New York, and was appointed to carry the electoral vote of the state to Washington.

In 1876 he was appointed United States marshal for the District of Columbia. After this he became recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, from which office he was removed by President Clevehe revisited England to inform the friends ' sembly a makeshift.

whom he had made while a fagitive stave of the progress of the African race in the United States. After his return to the United States he was appointed minister to Hayti by President Harrison, in 1884.

The Haytenn ministry was the last position in the grit of the United States held by Mr. Doneliss. In 1822 Hayti made an appropriation of money for the Columbian exposition at Chicago and appointed Mr. Donglass in senior of her two commissioners to the exposition. Since the closs of the exposition Mr. Douglass has lived qui thy in Washington, without engazing in any special business. His wealth is tariously retimated at from $100,000 to

CHANDLER'S SENSATION.

New Hampshire's Senator Wants an Investigation

OF THE RICENT COLD PURCHASES.

He Declares the Transaction to be One of the Most Remarkable in Our History. The liouse Passes the Bill Providing for New War Vessels.

Washington, Feb. 21.-Mr. Chandler (N. H.) created something of a sensation in the senate yesterly be outlining some important steps to 1 - taken by the next congress, including a congressional invesligation of the recent purchase of gold by the president of the United States. The speech cam supexpetedly as an incident to the debate on the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Chin iler protested against the manner of actualing general legislation to appropriation odlis, saying it would make an extra sers on inevitable. Then he added that it would be well to assemble the new congress at an early day, in order to let it begin its important work. It would, in the senator's judg.nont. provide for building the Nicaragua e mai. It would also take speedy steps for the annexation of Hawan. It would investigate, deeply and thoroughly, the recent purchase of gold, which transaction said the senator, was one of the most remarkable in our history. It was certain to be investigated by the house of representatives, said Mr. Chandler, and would be investigated by the

During the early hours of the day the silver bill made its exit from the senate, Mr. Jones (Ark.) in charge of the measure, announcing that its friends would make no further effort to pass it at the present session. The disposal of the measure was emphasized by the decisive vote of 55 to 12 on Mr. Gorman's motion to take up the Indian appropriation bill, the effect of which was to displace the silver bill and send it back to the calendar, Mr. Walcott's resolution declaratory for silver, but postponing action, also went to the calendar without final action.

The opponents of the new battleships suffered a crushing defeat yesterday when Mr. Sayers' motion to strike out the authorization for the war vessels was lost in the house by a vote of 67 to 199. Mr. Dolliver (Ia.) succeeded in having an amendment adopted providing for the building of two torpedo boats on the Mississippi river. The naval bill, as passed, authorizes the construction of three battleships, to cost, exclusive of armor, $4,000,000 each, and twelve torpedo boats to cost $170,600 each.

COUNTERFEITERS CAPTURED.

Leaders of a Gang That Has Bothered the Government for Years.

OMAHA, Feb. €1.—United States officers last night arrested leaders of what is believed to be one of the best organized and oldest gangs of counterfeiters that has troubled the government for years. Charles Sheppard and William T. Grossecross are the men tailed. They were located on a farm a few miles from Omaha, where they were masquerading as farm hands. With them were secured a melting pot, compositions, some counterfeiters' tools and a large quantity of silver dollars of the 'glass' order.

All the towns in the Missouri valley have been flooded with coins placed in circulation during the past year, and it is estimated that a thousand bogus dollars have been put on the market in that territory by the gang. Their work has been of such an excellent character that detection was almost impossible, and Sioux City, Omaha, Council Bluffs, Lincoln, St. Joseph, Atchison, Kansas City and other Missouri valley cities are known to contain agents who have been "shoving" the product of the gang.

It is said one of the prisoners has confessed, and every agent of the organization is known and will be arrested. The arrest of the two men is the result of the work of a number of secret service de-

"Cholly" Writes About the Late Ward Mc-Allister, Who Created "the 400." I was present at a gay dance on Thursday evening when the news of Ward McAllister's death was brought It was entirely unexpected, because nobody knew that he was ill, yet it created no sensation whatever.

Mr. McAllister was a creation of the newspapers. They made him famous, but they could never endow him with the influence and importance with which they credited him.

They spoiled a rather vain and commonplace man, who was not ill natured or vindictive, but simply conceited and

He believed what he read of himself in the newspapers and wrote a book. That seriest him in the opinion of the men and women of whom he was supposed to be the leader. When he made his unfortunate statement about the Four Hundred, he incurred the dislike of the people whom he left out and gained nothing by his presumptuous flattery of those to the manner born.

That same summer at Newport he undertook to advise Mrs. Ogden Mills and one or two smart young married women like her how they should give dinners and how they should entertain.

They bitterly resented his interference, and some of them went so far as to strike him off their visiting lists.

Mrs. William Astor was then still in the zenith of her power, and it was upon her that Mr. McAllister was forced to lean for social support. But he had to give up his subscription pienics, on which he had greatly prided himself, and when he took to writing screeds over his own signature for the daily papers the elect of society were unanimous that he had lost caste and was willing to accept the position in which he found himself.

For the past three years Mr. McAllister's social power has been absolute-

How could it be otherwise when even the last important and influential friend he had-Eirs. William Astor-found her own scepter an awkward thing to

As I w. : about Mrs. Astor some days ago, saying that there was no further chance for a one woman social power in New York, so it is impossible that any one man will ever attempt to usurp the power that was unauly credited to Mr. McAllister.

Even had he not written a book, not invented a "Four Hundred" and not antagonized individuals his social position would have waned just the same and he would have had to give way before the horde just as others have done.

Society will prefer to remember this gentleman as he was at one of his old time pienics at Newport, running about and fussing over the viands and wines, bullying the waiters, flirting with the women, pointing out his turnip patch and whisking his coattails about on the dancing platform.

In those days, before the papers puffed him up, he was amusing, good natured and funny. Everybody could get along with him, and he was nobody's enemy.

Had he died ten years ago society would have been in sackcloth and ashes. Today all it says is: "Poor fellow! Rather sudden, wasn't it?"—Cholly

Knickerbocker in New York Recorder. INADEQUATE PUNISHMENT.

The Elbe Disaster Calls Attention to Shortcomings of the Law.

One of the lessons of the awful Elbo disaster is the utter inadequacy of the punishment provided by law for the crime which caused the loss of nearly 400 lives, for the violation of the international steering and sailing regulations on the part of the commander of the Crathie was nothing less than a

The direction in which the two ships were sailing makes it clear beyond dispute that the Crathie had the Elbe on her starboard side, and, according to the plain and explicit provisions of the navigation rules, it was the duty of the Crathie to keep clear, to stop or to reverse her engines or pass astern of the Elbe. By the same rules it was the duty of the Elbe to keep her course, as sho did. And yet the possible loss of his master's certificate is the only punishment which can be meted out to the four hundredfold homicide, by whose criminal default the unfortunate crew and passengers of the Elbe were consigned to death amid unimaginable and indescribable horrors. Here is certainly a ease for an international understanding and for the extension of the jurisdiction of the admiralty courts of maritime nations.—Philadelphia Record.

Speckled Beauties Out of Season. There has been a movement on foet for some weeks among retail and wholesale fish dealers to stop the Hlegal side of trout, which is being made in this city. The law does not go out before April 15, and for weeks trout has been brought to commission merchants in boxes marked smelts or frost fish. These are sold to opicures, who will pay almost any price for things out of season. The dealers complain that when the trout season opens, and dealers display their fish, the wealthier classes will not buy, having tired of these delicacies. Thus does this illegal traffic interfere with legitimate basiness. It is also stated that a large trout order can be filled with two days' notice, and that they are brought from the New England states. - New York Herald.

She has a tendency to distrest people en first acquaintance, but when one gets to know her she is a cheery creature, and her worn face brightens up, her eyes glisten, and she talks vivaciously.

She has a wealmoss for children and is always reging, and trying with suceess to make friends of them.

The people who know her well, and it is significant that a great many poor people know her well, will tell you that Hetty Green is eccentric and whimsical, but that, after all, they like her. She is interesting.

Even a person who did not know who she was would bestow a second glance upon this unfashionably clad and often shabby woman if she passed by in a

"The poor have no chance in this country. No wonder anarchists and socialists are so namerous. The longer we live the more discontented we all get, and no wonder too. Some blame the rich, but all the rich are not to blame.

Thus spoke Mrs. Green when the Brooklyn strike was at its height. It was a general conversation, and she was taking her share in it. The talk had drifted from the particulars of the case to the generalities it involved, and Mrs. Green was more radical than any one. "But the law must be upheld," re-

"The law must be upheld, must it?" repeated the woman of millions scornfully. "Then why don't they begin at the right end? Who begins to break the law? The great railroad magnates. There is Huntington. He and his railroads and the men about him have been grinding wealth out of the poor for years and years and defying the authorities. But the militia are never sent against him. When some poor starving fellows get desperate and cars don't run. how quickly they send the troops! 1 will say, though, that the boys in the militia are not to blame. Their sympathies are always with the strikers. But what can they do? They must obey oriers.''

"How would you remedy these things?"

"How? Make these railroad magnates obey the law or put them in prison. Ler the poor man break the law and see how soon he gets into jail."—Buston

A NOTABLE KENTUCKIAN.

Extraordinary Obituary Tribute to the Late Alamander Martin of Lackey.

Died, at the home of his brother, near this place, on Jan. 16, Alamander Martin, in the seventy-ninth year of his age. He was born in Ohio. Came with his parents to Kentucky at an early age. He was well beloved by all who knew him. He was a model in the way of economy, industry and honesty. His voice will no more be heard by his many relatives whom he so much loved and so faithfully served during sickness. We will greatly miss him, but pray the Lord to reconcile us to this sad bereavement, knowing that our loss in his eternal gain. His funeral services were attended by the Rev. William Cook, and a sermon was preached from the book of God, after which a large concourse of people followed his remains to their last resting place until called forth on the resurrection morn. The following is a short sketch of his life:

During Mr. Martin's early life The country was full of witches, He carried a gun and butcher knife And wore the leather breeches.

But as time advanced
He charged his pants,
Yet still preferred the leather.
He would often tell The way they would smell

In time of rainy weather. He was a man of iron nerve, A voice loud and piercing. His head was gray, his spine curved, Before he quit his cursing.

His latter days were days of peace, A change in disposition. As strength gave way grace increased And seved him from perdition.

Now he sails on Zion's ship, No more pairs from his poor old hip. He is done with troubles here below And gone where all good mortals go. -Catlettsburg Democrat.

Climb of the Pencil.

A new fashion that is just beginning to grow in vogue is that of writing letters in pencil rather than with pen and ink, and when once fairly established it is doubtful whether anything but legal documents and business papers that must be preserved will ever be prepared in the old style. Letters are generally shorter nowadays than they formerly were and more hastily written, more frequent and seldom worth keeping for any length of time. They are not the claborate efforts of bygone days, that were often cherished for their intrinsic worth. The pencil, which is far mora convenient than the pen, is therefore taking its place in the great mass of casual correspondence. — Kansas City

The Poor Profited.

A novel scheme to provide bread for the poor was recently successfully tested in Flint, Mich. There were 150 competitors among the ladies of the city to see who could bake the best loaf, each contestant to make three loaves, the winner to receive a valuable prize and the bread to be given to the poor. The winner of the contest was the wife of the mayor.

I am 73 years old, and had been ruptured 25 years. For the benefit of all persons having rupture, I will prove to these who call upon me that my cure is permanent.

You have been taught Rupture could not be cared. We prove, beyond a doubt, it can be, by curing men you all know.

You Need Not Pay Until You Are Satisfied You Are Cured. If you cannot afford to take our treatment and be cured, come and let us fit you with a Truss, on trial, to be paid for when satisfied with it

WE MAKE A TRUSS FIT EACH PERSON.

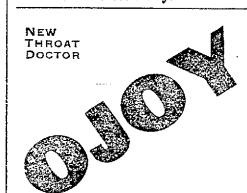

It is not guess work. We know how, It is our specialty. People come hundreds of miles to see us, and always return satisfied. It costs nothing to let us prove we can satisfy you. We treat men, women and children, with ut regard to age of person or duration of rupture.

Four Men Get Ten Days for Robbing Coal Cars at the summit,

James H. Pal ner, Poincas V. Conklin, William Masthews and John L. Davis, the latter one of the notorious albino tribe from Jumptown, were arrested at the Summit, yesterday afternoon, by Detective Charles A. Fisher and an assistant.

The gang has for some time past been operating on coal trains which stop at the Summit for water. They would shovel off all the coal they could while the train was at a standstill, and afterward put it into bage and cart it on hand sleighs to their home on Mill street, near the cametery entrance.

Recorder Bradner sent the gang to Goehen jail for ten days each, promising them a steady job in the penitentiary if they repeated the offense. The ranch on Mill screet is a blot upon the community, and should be wiped out and its inhabitants scattered.

A VERY PLEASANT ENTERTAINMENT

Young Men of Grace Church Entertain ed at Mr. H, W. Wigginst.-Mr. Rorty's Very Interesting Talk.

The third and last ante-Lent sociable of the young men of Grace Church was held, last evening, at the residence of Mr. H. W. Wiggins, on Orchard street. Mr. Rorty was present and entertained the company with a very interesting and instructive talk of his school days in the wilds of Donegal. The characteristica of the various pedagogues who did not spare the rod for fear of spoiling the child, the pirched battles with the other young Hibernians, in which he once got more than he gave, the ghoul-haunted woodiands, the virtues of "the finest peasantry," tue chaffering of the Connaught marketmen were all expressed with rare and racy humor.

Songs, assecdotes and readings occupied the rest of the evening, in which Mr. Wiggins, Mr.; Wickham and Mr. Wilcox figured prominently. A very bearty vote of thanks was given by acclamation to Mr. and Mrs. Wiggins for their generous entertainment and to Mr. Rurty for his excellent talk.

FISH OR PIXIE?

It was hidden away in the chalice of the hills like a dowdrop in the folds of a burdock leaf—one of those mountain tarns of Western Ross which are roused by sunshine into distinctive beauty of their own, deadened by mist out of all individuality, so that the wandering fisherman has some excuse for being careless of names, of everything save the troublying between the shallow and the The time was June, and I had slipped away from London for three weeks' freedom ere the gathering of the gillies and the general raid of the populace on the Sassenach make the West Highlands a purgatory instead of a paradise to these who have not the purse of Fortunatus.

Day after day rose cloudless, serene. in true June tashion. There was no one to hurry me, no one to hint at a light basket. As for sport, fish must feed, even in the driest weather, and sometimes, if the heat baze dimmed the water and a causoless breeze set the cotton tassels swinging, a brief half hour would come, sufficient for most men. Then the charm of the long evenings. when, though the light left the world, it lingered in the sky till dawn brought renewal, kept me in thrall and drove my cook to distraction.

I had had a blank day on the bigger lochs. Even the time between 7 and half past, when the glitter goes from the water, brought me no luck. On my way home, partly for the sake of lingering longer in the surpassing beauty of the moors, I bethought me of a blue dot, which, according to the map, should lie half a mile to the westward.

I shall never forget my first sight of Loch Finaich, or Loch of the Heather, as it was called. Held in the bollow of the hills, it had two arms, one stretching west to where the moorland sloped swiftly to the sen. Thus at its farther end the shining level of water looked about as if to plunge into space, intent on quenching the fires of sunset in the sky. The other arm wound, dark and deep like a shadowed mirror, into a precipitous correi, where the snowdrifts still lay, despite the heat. There was an unearthly stillness and silence in its beauty which thrilled me through and through. A distinct desire to take refnge in the commouplace made me hurry to a strip of shingle and throw my fly where a faint shadow told of weeds below the water. The next instant I forgot everything in the knowledge that a big fish had risen short. The brown body and turkey wing lit like a thistle down again and again without response, and I was about to turn away when a circle of widening ripples told me the brote was at me once more. Mortal angler could not resist the challenge. I threw over it, around it, to windward, to leeward of it, without success. The glare had left even the eastern shore. The sunset had faded to pearly grays and golds. It was growing late. But one more cast-by all that is tantalizing-at me again!

"Very annoying," said a voice behind me as my fly fell on the water, light,-but determined. -

I turned in surprise. Some ten yards off on the bank behind me a man of about 20 was leading on a landing net, from his dress a fisher like myself, though he carried no red.

"Very annoying," I echoed, "but I'll get the brute yet." "I doubt it. I thought so, too, but I was mistaken."

To a fisherman the confession of failure in a rival is never disheartening. I put a little more skill into my cast, that was all. "It has been a beautiful day, hasn't it?" went on the voice behind, just as the fish stirred again. "As fine a midsummer eve as I remember. By the way, do the f "rebont here tell tales of the dangers of Mr. Jelm's eye, as they used to do? "No," I repiled shortly, for I was rapidly lisher my temper over that devil of a fish, "but 4 or a function it. Pinics, fulries on full that both." "Table to See All that books "

"It is not much use to the world nat

"From. University of ghosts." Wan go cliber. Ghosts never are use-

"Let us impgine a Luodicean ghost, then. Say, a fellow like you or I-no harm perhaps, not much good eithera bit of a daone, ch? Can't you imagine such a one pursued, when the game is over, with a wish to have played a stronger hand? I can I can imagine him coming-say, to a faraway spot like this—to a lock where life ended for him perhaps, to lay his hand on some one's shoulder, as I lay my hand on yours, and say: 'Fish no more! It is a pixic laring you to death!' Ah, I am a good actor, you see. I have made you start. ' It was true. Something in tone and touch had sent a shiver through me. I forgot the big fish in a sudden desire for home and rest, not to say dinner.

"A very good actor," I assented, beginning to reel up as he rose. "Do you come my way?" "No, my road lies yonder." He pointed to where the western wedge of light was fast darkening. "Ab, the inn at Corriebuie, I suppose. Well, goodby. I may meet you here again some day."

"Scarcely," he answered, with a swife. "Then elsewhere. The world is small." "Very-what we know of it." "True. For all I know, I may be parting from a real friend," I replied gayly. "You may have saved me from a pixie or a five pounder. Which is "Let us say from infatuation. That is certain. Goodby.'' A boggle in my cast claimed my attention, and when I looked up be had disappeared behind the recky promontory between the two arms of the loch. As I turned to go my eye caught a glitter in the shingle at my feet. It was a when you know you have gold signer ring which I remembered remarking on the stranger's hand as he laid it on my shoulder. I ran after him, shouting as I ran, finally making my way to a bit of rising ground, whence I could command the declivity leading to Corriebuie inn. He was not to be seen. As I came back for my rod a faint circle of light showed on the darkening water. The big fish was still rising, and I hurried away, half afraid of being beguiled into trying conclusions with it. Next day being Sunday, I walked over to Corriebuic in order to return the ring to its owner. My friend of Loch Finnich was not there, nor did the ring itself give me any clew, for the design on it had been much scratched and worn as if by water. The world, however, as we agreed, is small, and partly on the chance that in the motley crowd of London I might come across its owner and partly from a strange fascination for the memory of my five minute friend, I took to wearing the ring con > an odd, unaccountable affection for it grew up in me, and I felt I should be sorry to have it taken from me. In the November following I was on my way to join a yacht, bound for the Mediterranean at Flymouth. Immersed in a book, I scarcely noticed the advent of another traveler into the smoking carriage in which I was seated until I saw him searching vainly in his pockets for a match. Naturally I offered him my cigar. As I held it out he started so violently as almost to knock it out of stantly until a sense of possession and my hand. "I beg your pardon," he said courteously, "but the ring you wear aroused a painful memory. A very dear friend of mine had one somewhat similar." "A friend! Was he by any chance in Scotland this sammer?"

My companion shook his head and looked out of the window. "No. He joined the majority years ago. A terrible loss to the regiment. One of those fellows good all round. Crack shot, splendid rider, A1 fisherman and so keen!" He paused.

"It cost him his life in the end," he went on. "I was in India at the time, so I don't know the ins and outs of it. But it was at some place in Western Ross. He went out fishing one day and never returned. A simple thing to say, but only God knows what happened."

So inthralled had I been by his unexpected words that I had failed to notice the train was stopping, and before I realized what he was about the strauger was on the platform of a roadside station. My gesture of dismay must have been construed by him as a farewell, for he raised his hat. The express was already in metion. I craned from the window to eatch the name of the station, but before I realized I was on the wrong side all hope of that clew was gone. Three hours after I had left England. Susbequently inquiries in Ross-shire elicited the fact that an Englishman had been lost in the neighborhood years before, but not even a legend connected his disappearance with Loch Finaich.

The ring is still on my finger. I have great affection for it, and if its owner were to appear I should feel lost withbut it, for it has taught marmany things, but not to settle the great question: "Was it a five pounder, or was it a

A NIGHT OF HORROR. In Search of a Drink of Weter, Chugwater

Gets Stuck Up. The home of the Chugwater family is a commodicus down town structure built with an eye to comfort, well lighted and thoroughly heated.

For the pract understanding of the causes that her to the domestic tragedy herein set forth it will be necessary for the reader to group the idea that the heating arrangements of the Chugwater mansion are especially complete. It will enable him to understand why, in spite of the vigilance of Mrs. Chugwater and the ex-ertions of Eridget, the faithful kitchen lady, there still remained in the house in spite of the lateness of the season a small but persistent colony of thes. These pestiferous insects kept themselves out of reach of the broom and flybrash, refused to be enjoled or ariven out of doors and continued to take an active interest in the affairs of the ramily regardless of the state of the weather and the lateness of the scason. They were no ordinary flies. They

On a certain fateful evening some weeks ago Mrs. Cangwarar, driven to despera-tion, went to a drug store and laid the case before the intelligent clerk.

She emerged from the store shortly afterward with a package; which she carried with unusual care. After the evening meal, when everybody else had left the dining room, she unfolded that package.

She spread upon the dining table an imposing array of traps designed to eatch the early rising, or, rather, the early descending, fly next morning and make an end of him, and with a smile of triumph which Mr. Chugwater could not have understood had he noticed it she joined the family in the sitting room.

The night wore on. The flickering glare of the street lamps outside faintly outlined the dim, shadowy forms of belated pedestrians hurrying homeward through the fierce tempest. In dismal howls the voice of the storm king rose and fell as if rehearsing a midnight mass for the year that was soon to lay its weary bones in the neglected graveyard of the past, and the unresponsive earth decked itself in a mantle of spotless white as if mock ingly displaying its boundless wealth of material for the swaddling clothes of the new year such to be born.

The immates of the Chugwater mansion, undisturbed by the fury of the warring elements outside, slept in peace, and silence reigned within its walls, save that from the apartment occupied by Mr. Chugwater there came at irregular intervals a jarring sound like the note of a dis-tant foghers. It signified that Mr. Chug-water was all right. He always slept that way. And the night continued to wear

It must have been nearly an hour past miduight when Mr. Chugwater became entangled in an unusually complicated and obstinate shore that refused to go either backward or forward. He awoke with a jerk and found he was thirsty.

Climbing out of bcd, he groped his way down stairs and out toward the kitchen, with a dindy defined idea of getting something to drink.

Let us not inquire too closely what he expected to drink. It is perhaps none of our business. It may have been milk.

As he entered the dining room he stumbled over a chair that unluckily stood in the way. He lunged forward, striking one of the leaves of the dining table and upsetting that plees of furniture. It fell toward him, and as he put out his hands to save himself they came in contact with something horribly slimy and sticky. The impetus of his forward movement carried him down with the table, and he rolled over on something that, stuck to his face

In his struggles to free himself the sticky thing wrapped itself all about his face and head. His hands, equally sineared and swathed, became more tangled and helpless at every wild surge he made, and with a muffled yell he rose to his feet. He was standing on something moist, sticky and terrible that seemed to trip him when he moved. In vain he tried to pull off the beastly wrappings that enveloped his head. There seemed to be nothing he could get hold of, and his hands had lost their power to grasp anything.

"Blank dash the dad dinged lack!"
came with a skilled roar from whatseemed to be the upper section of Mr. Chugwater's anaromy. "What the blanknation is this business anyhow? Who the Sam Hill has been smearing molasses and porous planters all over the blamed house?

'Mfff Chiff Bri 'Ski Grki Gr'shi'' With convolvive energy he clawed at the wrappings that covered his mouth. He succeeded in making on opening, and his voice rang through the house with a force and volume simply appailing. "Bring a light, sourthedy!" he yelled.

"Murder! This vest Fire! Call the po-Hee! Good heavens, can't you harry? Get a move on you! For the blessed angels' soke, be quick!"

The terrified members of the family came trooping into the dining room. The gas was harriedly lighted, and there steed Mr. Chugwater in his night clothes covered from head to foot with sticky by paper, while from a ragged opening in the sheets that enveloped his head there came Innguage dreadful to hear. The table stoud on its side, a broken chair sprawled near it, and the room looked as if a cyclone had passed through it. Mrs. Chugwater leaned against the sideboard and surveyed him with emotions that for some moments deprived her of

"It's you, is it, Josiah?" she said at last faintly. "You seem considerably stuck

How she helped Mr. Chugwater to free himself from the maddening fly paper, how she soothad his wounded feelings, scraped the sticky stuff from his face, told him he ought never to venture alone through the house at night, explained that she hadn't thought it necessary to notify him of the trap she had laid for the ffies but that she might have known he would walk right into it-all these things belong to the domain of those sacred confidences of homelife into which the meddlsome outsider has no right to intrude.

And the flies reported for business next morning, as usual.-Chicago Tribune.

MISS MAUD E. COOPER, of 125 W. 46th St., NEW YORK CITY was thus a gainer; the trials of others showed her how she might be saved. Her system was completely shattered, the effects of a fall while horseback riding. The care of physicians, a year in Florida all made no change, and there apparently could be but one termination to her sufferings. She says: "I was attracted by the notices I saw of

OBITUARY.

James P. Gregory.

James P. Gregory died suddenly at 5:30 o'clock, last night, at the residence of his augt, Miss Loretia Gregory, near Van Burenville, aged forty-six years.

Mr. Gregory, who had assisted his aunt in the management of the farm, performed his duties as usual, yesterday, although he complained of feeling ill during the afternoon. About 5 o'clock he became suddenly ill and died in ten minutes.

Deceased was born at Wurtsboro and was a son of Jeniel Gregory, who now lives at Slate Hill, and his first wife, Charity Palmer.

Besides his father he is survived by by two brothers, John L., operator and station age: tat Unionville, and Franklin, of New York city.

Owing to the illness of all the members of the household the funeral will be private.

Coroner Decker was notified of the sudden death, and Dr. Fancher will make an examination of the body, to-day. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause of death.

Mrs. sarah Jano Becker.

Mrs. Sarah Jage, widow of the late Ahial Decker, died at her home at Allard's Corners, in the town of Montgomery, Tuesday morning.

She was born August 13th, 1809, near Jo Gee, in the town of Wawayanda, then the town of Minisink. She was a daugnter of Alexander and Mary Boyd.

She is survived by the following children: James A. Decker, a banker at Baldwin, Wis.; Dr. David H. Decker, a physician and druggist at Menominee, Wis; Alexander, of Kansas City, and Ahial and Amelia, at home. One of her sons, Berjamin Franklin, died several years ago, leaving a wife and children, who now reside at Chester. Three chidren, Gabriel H., Marietta and Saran Jane, died before reaching maturity. She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Charlotte Amanda Green, of Rockland county, and Mary Boyd, of Brattleboro, Vt., and three brothers, Frederick S. Boyd, of New York, father of Mrs. S. M. Boyd, of this city, Alexander P. Boyd, of San Francisco, and George H. Boyd, who resides near this city.

David R. boyd, deceased, father of Mr. Charles J. Boyd, of the Press, and Rev. John N. Boyd, deseased, father of ex-Mayor Samuel M. Boyd and Mrs. Mary Berry, of this city, were brothers, and Mrs. Abigail Crist, decessed, mother of Theodore Crist, of Hontgomery, and Keturah Ann Hortor, deceased, mother of Charles H. Horton, were sisters.

Mrs. Desker was for many years a member of the Presbyterian Church of Monticello, where he and her family resided in early life, connecting herself with the Presbyterian Church of Montgomery when they removed to that locality, some twenty-five years ago.

The funeral will take place at her iate residence, at 1 p. m., on Saturday. Interment at Neelytown.

Terrence Costello.

Mr. Terrence Costello, an old and highly respected citizen, died at his home, No. 33 John street, at 2 o'clock, this morning, aged eighty year.

He had been in failing health for the past two years, and about a year ago a cancer developed in his face, which finally caused his death.

Mr. Costello was born in County Oavan, Ireland, and came to this country forty-eight years ago, sertling in Middletown. During all these years, until his health failed two years ago, he has been an employe of the Erie Railway Company in various capacities, the later years as flagman.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. Catharine Cannen, of this city, and Phillip and John, of New York city. Also by a sister hving in Brooklyn. Three of hissons, Luke, Terrence and James died several years ago, the former who had been ordained to the priesthood, Jied in New York city about CHILD SICKLY?

Strength is Not Enough for Proper Growth.

The Young Body Fails Get Well Nourished.

Necds Richer Bone and Tissue Forming Food.

Body Cannot Grow Without Pure, Sturdy Blocd.

Unconalled Value of Paine's Celery Compound.

From birth till past the age of thirty there is growth: some of the bones do not completely knit till thirty-five.

All this time in addition there is the steady waste of the tissues that most be repaired. The demand upon the vitality and upon the powers of assimilation is thus eno mous during these years. Without plenty of rich noutishing blood, growth must be defective and tardy. But when it courses through all the arteries in a full, vigorous stream, growth goes on steadily and per'ectly.

What countless numbers of frail youngsters physicians see whose pitiably thin wrists and bloodless faces cry out for better nourishment. All this does not escape the vigilant insight of parents. In thousands of homes it is well known that the boys and energetic young people who and girls are somehow badly nourish- have our best wishes.

The weak stomache and organs of assimilation cannot extract the food for growing nerves and brain in sufficlent quantities from the ordinary diet. A special perve diet is what they need. Paine's celery compound is Prof. Edward E. Phelps' great preparation for nourishing these little frames and making them grow into strong, active men and women. Dr. Phelps, upon whom colleges conferred their bighest bonors for his invaluable investigations in medicine, knew from ripe experience the exact needs of these little sufferers. A chorus of gratitude has gone up all over the country, from mothers of children once weakly and pale, without premise of ever growing into robust men and women, who have outgrown weakness and a lack of vitality by the use of Paine's celery -compound, taken with the regularity that physicians adhere to when - prescribing this wonderful perve and blood restorative.

It is valuable in all wasting diseases, in cleansing the blood of rheumatism, neuralgia, ecrofula, and supplying new and nealthy vital fluid -its value can neither be weighed nor measured.

As the great modern nerve and brain strengthener and restorer Paine's celery compound is pronounced invaluable by all progressive physicians. Give this grand invigorator a fair trial and be convinced,

A CRAZY MªN IN CHURCH.

An Insane Man Takes Possession of Rev. Mr. Burch's Pulpit in Newburgh!

An insane man entered St. John's Church, Newburgh, of which Rev. B. H. Burch is pastor, while the sexton was cleaning the building, yesterday, and nearly frightened that official out of his wite.

The man first kneeled in the aisle and prayed; he then advanced to the altar and prayed again; then he ascended the pulpit, opened the Bible, began to real and then to preach, using the language of an educated person and speaking louder and louder until he could be heard a block away. The sexton watched his opportunity and slipped out and notified Mr. Burch and hastened for an officer, but when they arrived at the church the man had disappeared. Letter he The fancial will be from the house | was seen near the church, but took to his heels when he saw the officers.

FIRE AT MONTGOMERY.

A Barn and Centents Including Three Horses, Bestroyed. From our Montgomers Correspondent.

A disastrous fire occurred here at 2 o'clock, Wedresday morning, the barn of Mrs. E. H. miller, and all its contents having been destroyed. The building contained three horses, about four tons of hay, a quantity of rye, feed, harness, etc. The convents belonged to Wm. McNeal, Jr. The fire department responded, but as the building burned rapidly it was too far gone to save anything. The origin of the fire is unknown, but the supposition is that it was the work of an incendiary. No insurance was carried on either building or stock.
